Northern Power Futures is a two day festival taking place in Manchester on 23-24 November at Manchester Central and we would love you to join us. Over two days, we will bring together 100+ speakers and participants from across the North to talk about issues that affect us all, from education and employment to innovation and wellbeing.

Whether you are still studying, looking for a new role, or interested in supercharging the role you're in, there will be a chance to hear from interesting speakers, and to learn practical skills such as Microsoft Office Tools, campaigning and building an online presence. There will also be an opportunity to network with some of the major organisations in the region. The speed mentoring session will end at 9.30am and at 10.30am Andy Burnham, Metro Mayor for Greater Manchester will be opening the festival with a live reverse mentoring session which will be of great interest.

The event will have a variety of different learning activities, including

- Microsoft office tools (from Microsoft (Friday))
- Panel discussions on Northern economy, workplace and wellbeing
- Q&A opportunities across both days
- Bitesize practical sessions
- Employer exhibitors from the private and public sector
- Workshops aimed at all levels, from school and college students, to senior leaders.
