SMA have a strong relationship with the LJMU outreach team and would normally arrange talks and support for 6th form students particularly throughout the application process.

Unfortunately this face to face support is currently not available. However LJMU pleased to announce a new series of webinars to support students through the ever changing world of higher education.

Students will be able to register for individual events which explore all aspects of the university cycle, from an introduction to higher education, student finance, writing a personal statement and exploring how to apply for in demand subjects. They are also running a session to answer any questions parents may have about university.

Each session is followed by a question and answer session with key university staff, as well as members of our outreach team. All the links are below for registration.

We would like to share an exciting course which has been designed by Queen's University Belfast in partnership with EIT Food, Autonomous University of Madrid, Aarhus University, University of Turin and the Spanish National Research Council (CSIC). It is targeted to 16 to 18 year-olds who are studying a food-related subject, those considering a career in food and for those individuals who want to feel empowered to make safe, healthy and sustainable food choices. The online course is called 'Introduction to Food Science' and begins on 5th October on FutureLearn. It is now open for enrolment.

What is it about?

Across 4 weeks, the course aims to create an awareness and understanding where learners are encouraged to become responsible partners in the food system. This will in turn empower them to make safe, healthy and sustainable food choices and spark a new generation of informed consumers. The topics covered include:

- Food integrity
- Diet and health
- Ethical and sustainable considerations
- Role of the consumer

We would be delighted if you could share this fantastic opportunity with your students and to anyone you think could benefit.

Duration: 4 weeks

Study time required: 4 hours/week

Price: The course is free.

Register Now: Enrolment is open and the course begins on 5th October. register here
